

Distorted is an adjective meaning pulled or twisted out of a regular shape, or a fact and representation that is false and misleading. It can also refer to the Distorted (2018) film, a techno-thriller starring Christina Ricci and John Cusack.

Definition and General Meanings

- Form: Pulled, misshapen, or twisted out of its original, natural shape.
- Truth: Misrepresented, false, or failing to match reality (like a distorted news report or viewpoint).
- Sound: Unpleasant or rough audio caused by changes in an electric sound wave.

The 2018 Thriller Film

- Plot: A couple moves into a high-tech, safe apartment building called the Pinnacle.
- Conflict: The wife (played by Christina Ricci) suspects the building's smart technology is secretly brainwashing residents using subliminal messages.
- Cast: Features Christina Ricci, John Cusack, and Brendan Fletcher.
- Release: Released in the United States on June 22, 2018, with an 86-minute run time.