Narrative Letter - Toowo...

toowoombabulletin.com

This is a personal website called "Narrative Letter - Toowoomba Bulletin" that publishes a complaint letter about Ashly Nichole Peterson, a Provisional Licensed Psychologist with Queensland Health in Toowoomba, QLD, Australia.

What the page is

The site was created by William D. Hodges, who identifies himself as Ashly's father. He posted a lengthy letter dated July 2, 2026, revised August 15, 2026, intended as an "intervention." The stated purpose is to raise concerns about whether Ashly can be "Objective and Unbiased" as a psychologist due to what he describes as Unresolved Childhood Trauma.

Main claims in the letter

- Background: Ashly's parents were teenagers. Hodges describes incidents from her childhood including disciplinary actions at ages 5-6 and 10, which led to a CPS investigation, parenting/anger management classes, and Ashly spending ~3 years in foster care.

- Background: Ashly's parents were teenagers. Hodges describes incidents from her childhood including disciplinary actions at ages 5-6 and 10, which led to a CPS investigation, parenting/anger management classes, and Ashly spending ~3 years in foster care.
- Relationship: He says they had good periods with travel and photos, but later estrangement. He mentions disputes over grandparent contact, accusations made on WhatsApp and TikTok, and alleges "Grandparent Alienation."
- Concerns about her practice: He references Ashly's TikTok videos and messages, arguing she expresses attitudes "unbecoming of a Psychologist" and may project her own issues onto clients. He says she has stated she has difficulty accepting help.
- His own context: Hodges details his own losses, mental breakdown, Zoloft treatment, TBI from a 2010 robbery, heart surgeries, and therapy. He says he is willing to pay for joint therapy with Ashly.
- Evidence posted: The site lists folders with letters, text/WhatsApp screenshots, TikTok videos, pictures, background check documents, and links to Ahpra. Specific video folders cited: TT-1, TT-2, TT-3a, TT-5 to TT-8.

What the page is

It's framed as an "Intervention" and complaint letter. The author states his goal is to raise concerns about whether Ashly can be "Objective and Unbiased" as a therapist due to what he calls "Unresolved Childhood Trauma."

Main claims made on the site

- Relationship background: Ashly was born to teenage parents. Hodges describes incidents from her childhood including a disciplinary spanking at age 10 that led to a CPS investigation, foster care for 3 years, and no charges filed. He includes details about a mental breakdown, TBI from a robbery, heart surgeries, and other personal traumas he says affected their relationship.
- Current concerns: He alleges Ashly refuses joint

Family concerns about therapist

- Current concerns: He alleges Ashly refuses joint therapy with him, makes accusations in TikTok videos and messages, and uses terms like "boundaries" and "toxic" when there are conflicts. He disputes specific claims she has made about abuse, rape by an employee, and other events.
- Estrangement: He says he has not seen his granddaughter in 13-15 years and mentions consulting an Australian attorney about grandparent visitation/video rights.
- Evidence provided: The site links to folders with letters, text/WhatsApp screenshots, TikTok videos, photos, and a background check, and asks readers to "decide based on the information provided."

Disclaimer and tone

The page explicitly states it's intended for intervention and includes the author's contact info. It asks readers, including psychology boards, to review the materials and determine if Ashly should be allowed to practice.

Narrative Letter - Toowo...

This is a personal website from William D. Hodges addressed to the psychology board in Australia regarding his daughter, Ashly Nichole Peterson, a provisional licensed psychologist in Toowoomba, QLD.

What the page is about

- William says he is writing an "intervention" style complaint/notice because he believes Ashly has Unresolved Childhood Trauma and cannot be objective/unbiased as a therapist.
- He asks readers to review documents, messages, TikTok videos, and photos he posted to decide if she should be practicing.

Main claims and content included

- Childhood incidents: He details a CPS investigation when Ashly was 10 after a spanking left a mark. He says no charges were filed, but Ashly was placed in foster care for 3 years. He provides his background check as evidence.
- Family history: He describes financial stress, business loss, divorce, mental breakdown, psychiatric treatment, Zoloft, TBI/head injury in 2010, and a subsequent relationship with a woman who was a psychologist.

Family dispute and concerns psychiatric treatment, Zoloft, TBI/head injury in 2010, heart surgeries, and estrangement from Ashly and his granddaughter for ~15 years.

- Specific accusations he disputes: Claims about rape by an employee, threats to kidnap granddaughter, racism, phone being thrown, etc. He says these are not true or are misremembered.
- Professional concern: He argues that because Ashly posts personal content on TikTok and says she "has a hard time accepting help," she may bring bias into therapy. He wants joint therapy with her as he believes he is the "source of her issues."
- What he provided: Links to folders with letters, WhatsApp/text screenshots, TikTok videos, pictures, behavioral health records, and contact info for Ashly's mother.

Tone and purpose

The site frames itself as a plea from a father who loves his daughter and granddaughter but is concerned about her mental health and professional fitness. It repeatedly asks viewers to read all evidence before judging and states the goal is to protect others and encourage family therapy.

My daughter's apology letter

Letter to Ashly 2

toowoombabulletin.com

This is a long personal apology letter "Letter to Ashly 2" dated Nov 3, 2025, revised Aug 15, 2026, from a father to his daughter Ashly.

Main points

1. Apology and responsibility

The writer takes full responsibility for past actions and for trauma Ashly experienced during discipline/abuse. He says it wasn't from malice or lack of love, but from stress over business, house renovations, and fatigue. He references specific incidents: a mark on Ashly's lower back at age 6, and a time he slapped her in the face. He also apologizes for harsh words and for failing as a father and husband.

2. Context about his own upbringing

He describes growing up with an absent dad, an alcoholic mom, financial hardship, no parental guidance, head traumas, and working from age 8. He says he learned discipline from others, not from his mom, and that this shaped how he parented.

Ask Meta AI...

My daughter's apology letter

3. Divorce and business collapse

He explains the divorce came after a mental breakdown and therapy that suggested "fantasy role play" on Yahoo Messenger, which Ashly and her mom found. He says he refinanced the house to give equity to Ashly's mom, offered the business/accounts instead of child support, and regrets poor communication. He cites bankruptcy, losing $75k in contracts, and 16+ hour work days as major stressors.

4. Pride in Ashly

He praises her resilience: going to France, moving to Atlanta, then Australia, marriage, divorce, raising a child, college success, workouts, and motorcycle. He says he's proud she "out did" him in ROTC and education.

5. Recent events and plea for reconciliation

He mentions a later head trauma from being assaulted at work, losing 3 weeks of memory, and Ashly visiting him in hospital with her daughter Zoe. He addresses a threat he supposedly made about "kidnapping Zoe" that he doesn't remember due to the trauma. He says he has tried to contact Ashly, even traveling to Australia, sent letters via FedEx, and wants to rebuild a relationship. He ends with a prayer and "I Love You, Ashly, my daughter, my blessing – DAD".
